Handwritten text in a script, possibly Hebrew or Arabic, located on the right side of the strip.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or letter. The text is written on a single sheet of paper with a horizontal fold. The script is dense and fills most of the page. There are some dark spots and a small tear visible on the paper.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page, with some lines appearing to be part of a list or a continuous narrative. The handwriting is characteristic of a specific historical period, possibly the 17th or 18th century, based on the style of the letters and the overall appearance of the document. There are some dark spots and irregularities on the paper, suggesting age and handling.

[The following text is extremely faint and largely illegible due to fading or bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]

Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in several lines across the length of the strip. The script is cursive and characteristic of traditional Burmese writing. The document appears to be a fragment of a larger text, possibly a letter or a record, given the presence of a hole near the center.

Handwritten text in a South Asian script, likely Telugu, on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 12 horizontal lines. The script is finely etched into the surface of the dried leaf. The leaf itself is light brown, showing signs of age and wear, with a small dark spot visible near the center. The text is written in a cursive style, characteristic of traditional South Asian manuscripts.
